

Let's go back to the kitchen, Guy Fieri-style, to take a look at how I created the Triple-D Reel.

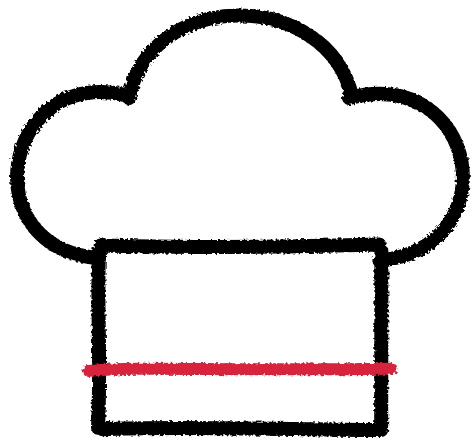

DINERS OUT, GLOBAL IN

WHEN I STARTED OUT, I HAD NO IDEA THAT GLOBAL KITCHENS HAD BECOME SUCH A BIG PART OF THE SHOW.

IT WAS GREAT TO FIND FOODIEPIE.COM. I REALLY APPRECIATED THE WORK THAT THEY PUT IN, AND I WANTED TO BUILD UPON IT AS A FELLOW FAN OF THE SHOW.

In the Before Times, I wouldn't have even done this because of the effort required, but with Claude as my chef de cuisine and Jev as my sous-chef, it seemed like a fun thing to tackle.

A restaurant with names that don't match in two data sources is still a single real-world thing. That's the exact same challenge as a customer with two IDs. It's still one customer.

1. Mise en place
   had anyone done this? where's the data?
2. Ingredients

3. Prep
   Claude writes the scrapers
4. Mix and stir
   match names across sources
5. Pre-heat the oven
   define diner, drive-in, dive
6. Bake in the oven

You gotta taste the food to make sure you're ready to serve it to a customer

At first it said more than half the places were dives...that can't be right. Can it? No way.

It's been a pleasure serving you. We hope you'll come again. Hit Follow for more.
